

APPROXIMATELY

ON PAGE B12

19 December 1985

Bernard P. (Pete)Chewning,

60, a retired analyst with the Central Intelligence Agency who was chairman of the board of deacons at the National City Christian Church, died of a cerebral hemorrhage Dec. 16 at Georgetown University Hospital.

Mr. Chewning was a lieutenant in the Metropolitan Police Reserve Corps and a retired major in the Army Reserves who had served in the China-Burma-India theater during World War II. At the time of his death, he was a security official with the Advanced Systems Corp.

At his church, he helped coordinate security with the White House during the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, who was a member there.

Mr. Chewning was born in Richmond and had lived in Washington since childhood. After his Army service in the war, he graduated from Lynchburg College. He joined the CIA in 1952 and retired in 1973.

He then returned to active duty in the Army for a short period. About 1975, he became an analyst for the Planning Research Corp. About 1982, he joined the security staff of the Neiman-Marcus department store. He joined Advanced Systems in 1984.

Mr. Chewning was a past master of Hope Masonic Lodge No. 20 and a commander of the Capitol Hill chapter of the Disabled American Veterans. He was a member of the Association of Former Intelligence Officers, the Reserve Law Officers Association of America and the Fraternal Order of Police.

Survivors include his wife, June, of Washington; two children, Peter, of Kearny, N.J., and Pamela, of Washington; his mother, Gladys W. Salisbury of Delray Beach, Fla., and one brother, Thomas W. Chewning of Key Biscayne, Fla.